

Meghan & Brandon

fb

hello there

We want to begin by acknowledging the incredible strength and courage it takes to walk this path for your baby. What you are doing comes from a place of deep love, and we truly see and honor that. My husband and I are so grateful that you are taking the time to consider us as a potential family for your child—it means more to us than words can fully express.

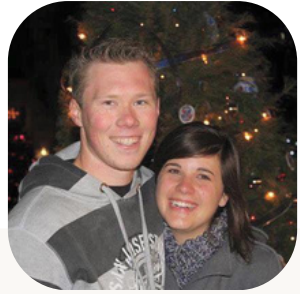

Please know that our hearts are with you every step of the way. We hope you feel surrounded by love, comfort, and support as you navigate this decision. We understand that this is not easy, and we want you to feel respected, heard, and cared for throughout the entire process.

If you choose us, we promise to always honor the love you have for your baby. We are committed to providing a life filled with care, stability, and unconditional love, and to always recognizing the important place you hold in your child's story.

Above all, we want you to know that we are here for you—not just in this moment, but throughout this whole process and we will do everything we can to support you with kindness and respect.

Thank you for taking the time to learn more about us as a family and we hope to meet you soon!

about us

We first met when we were just 14 years old. What started as a simple friendship quickly became something deeply meaningful. During those early years, we had the gift of growing up side by side, building a friendship rooted in trust, laughter, and the kind of love that reflects Christ. Long before we ever started dating, God was laying a strong foundation for our future.

Some of the most impactful parts of our story were the mission trips we were blessed to take together. Whether in Mexico or South Africa those experiences shaped our lives in profound ways. Serving others and witnessing God's work around the world not only strengthened our individual walks with Him, but also quietly deepened the bond between us. Even then, God was weaving our stories together in ways we couldn't yet see.

Years later, in our early 20s, God brought us back into each other's lives at just the right time. What once was friendship began to grow into something more, and it became clear that His hand was guiding us into a new season. We started our dating relationship in 2012 that had been built from years of friendship.

In 2015, we got married in our hometown, surrounded by the people that had been part of our journey from the very beginning. Shortly after, we moved to Colorado, where we spent a year and a half learning what it truly meant to build a Christ-centered home. That season stretched and strengthened us, teaching us to rely on God in new ways and to grow together as husband and wife.

When God led us back home, He continued to bless our lives beyond what we could have imagined. In 2018, we welcomed our first child, entering into parenthood with grateful hearts and a desire to raise our family in His truth and love.

Then in 2020, He blessed us again with our second, growing our family and our faith even more.

about meghan

In this season of life,

I have the incredible privilege of being a stay-at-home mom and get to homeschool our two wonderful kids. I also work part-time for our church, which has been such a gift to our family. The flexibility of my role allows me to remain present at home while also serving our community and supporting the work God is doing through our church. It's a balance that hasn't always been easy, but it has been deeply rewarding, and I'm so grateful for how it allows me to prioritize time with our kids while still using my gifts in a meaningful way.

In my freetime, you'll most likely find me outside either hiking through the forest, going for a run, or spending time at the beach.

I also love the simple, creative joys of home life. Crocheting has become one of my favorite ways to unwind, and there's something so special about making things by hand. I'm also an avid reader and love getting lost in a good book whenever I can find a quiet moment.

what i love about meghan by Brandon.

Where to begin. Meghan has always been my best friend. We have known each other for so long that spending time with her has become second nature. We have been careful to cultivate a strong marriage over the years, spending time together on some fun adventures. Going on a date with my wife is always my favorite time of the week. Even after ten years of marriage I always look forward to spending time with her, laughing with her and continuing to build our marriage.

Meghan is the most loving and caring person I know. She has poured her heart and soul into our children. It has been such an encouragement to me to see how much she loves our boy and our girl. I am so blessed that our kids are under her care and teaching. Every week she is always preparing the next lesson or project. She dedicates so much time and effort to teaching our kids. Not only does she teach them things like literature, history and math but she also reads stories to them. Our kids have listened to my wife read so many stories it's impossible to count. Her love of storytelling through reading to them is truly unrivalled. It has become evident in how our kids have developed their own passion for seeking out new stories and adventures through books of their own.

My wife is the best person I know. She is funny, caring, silly and loving. I have loved seeing how the Lord has worked in her heart over the years. She has become a great servant of the Lord and an amazing godly woman. The Lord continues to use her for His kingdom and continues to bless our family through her.

about brandon

My name is Brandon.

I have lived in the Santa Cruz Bay Area all of my life and I love that I get to raise my kids where I grew up. For the past decade I have worked at the family welding business. It was started by my grandfather over sixty years ago and now I help run the businesses alongside my dad. When not working I love being outdoors, exercising, playing table top games with friends and playing musical instruments. One of my favorite things to do is to play baseball with the kids in the front yard. We are currently in a season of life where the kids want to play, watch and talk about baseball all the time so being able to play with them regularly has been such a joy.

One thing that has become a family staple of ours is spending time outdoors. This was born from our own upbringing. For me, I developed a love of the outdoors from an early age. When I was a young child my family lived on a boat in the local harbor. It was a wild four years of our lives but it formed a habit of enjoying God's beautiful creation. This season of life has also been marked by lots of music.

Our children love to play and listen to music. I grew up playing various instruments and have been able to use that talent to play on the worship team at our church for a very long time. Whether it's playing the drums or the guitar I love seeing our kids in the pews singing praise to the Lord during the worship time.

what i love about
brandon
by Meghan.

Brandon is, without a doubt, one of the most hardworking and devoted men I have ever known, he truly is my best friend. There's a steadiness in him that brings so much peace into our home. He is a strong and thoughtful leader, never quick to react, but instead taking the time to carefully think through every possible option. He approaches decisions with wisdom and intention, always considering what is best not just for himself, but for our entire family.

At the same time, he brings so much joy and lightness into our lives. He loves to laugh and has an incredible, natural creativity that never fails to surprise me. Whether he's making up stories on the spot or finding humor in everyday moments, he has a way of making life feel fun and full. That balance of strength, wisdom, loyalty, and playfulness is what makes him so special and such an amazing husband, father, and friend.

about our kids

We are so grateful for the opportunity to share a little more about our family with you.

We have two wonderful children who bring so much joy, laughter, and life into our home. Our son Isaac, who is 8, has the most incredible imagination. He is creative, outgoing, and absolutely loves getting lost in a good story—whether he's reading one or creating his own. He has a natural curiosity about the world and a way of turning everyday moments into adventures. Most days, you'll find him outside acting out some grand imaginary quest—slaying dragons, casting spells, or riding a broomstick through a world only he can see.

Isaac also takes his role as a big brother very seriously. He is deeply loving and protective of his little sister, always looking out for her and making sure she feels included and safe. Watching their bond grow has been one of the greatest joys in our lives.

Our daughter Lily, who is 6, brings a gentle, joyful energy wherever she goes. She is kind, caring, and has such a natural ability to make people feel loved. She has a playful sense of humor and a bright spirit that lights up our home. Lily loves to dance, paint, and express herself creatively. It's not uncommon to find her twirling through the house, singing her favorite songs at the top of her lungs, or climbing trees with a fearless sense of adventure.

She also has a nurturing heart and loves to take care of anything smaller than herself—whether it's animals, plants, or even just making sure everyone around her is happy and cared for. Her compassion is something truly special. As a family, we spend a lot of time outdoors. We are lucky to live in the forest and near the beach, and those places have become a big part of our everyday life. Whether we're exploring trails, building forts, collecting shells, or just enjoying the fresh air together, those moments mean so much to us.

We also share a deep love of reading. Books are a big part of our home, and it's very common to find one or both of our kids curled up with a story, completely absorbed in another world. Reading together is something we cherish, and it's one of the many ways we connect as a family.

Our home is full of imagination, laughter, creativity, and love. We are so thankful for the life we've built together and for the joy our children bring into each day.

about our home, neighborhood & community

We live in the beautiful mountains of Northern California, in a sweet and quiet neighborhood where life feels peaceful and connected to nature.

Our home sits on about an acre of land, surrounded by tall trees and open space, which gives us a sense of calm and privacy while still being part of a warm, welcoming community.

Our yard and the land around us are a big part of our everyday life. The kids love having space to run, explore, and let their imaginations take over. It's not uncommon to find them building forts, climbing trees, or creating little adventures right outside our door. The natural setting gives them so much freedom to be curious, active, and creative, and it's something we truly cherish as a family.

Even though we're tucked away in the mountains, we're just a short drive from the coast, which means we get the best of both worlds. We spend a lot of time at the beach. The ocean has a special place in our hearts, and it's become one of our favorite places to relax and make memories.

Living here allows us to slow down, enjoy the little moments, and stay closely connected to nature while still having access to everything we need. It's a place filled with peace, beauty, and space to grow, and we feel so lucky to raise our family here.

about our friends & extended family

We are incredibly thankful to live within about 20 miles of all of our family, which allows us to see each other often and stay closely connected. These relationships are deeply important to us, and having that kind of consistent love and support nearby has been such a gift. Our children are growing up with strong bonds to their grandparents, aunts, uncles, and cousins, and those relationships bring so much joy, stability, and a true sense of belonging.

Along with our family, we are also surrounded by a wonderful, close-knit group of friends who feel like an extension of our family. There are about ten families we are especially close with, and together we have a lively group of more than 25 children. These friendships mean so much to us, and it's been such a joy to build a life alongside people who care for and support one another so deeply.

One of our favorite traditions as a group is our annual spring weekend camping trip. It's something we all look forward to and a tradition that has created so many meaningful memories for both the kids and the adults.

We feel so fortunate to be surrounded by such a loving, supportive network of family and friends. We are truly grateful for every single day.

Why adopt

Over the years, that desire hasn't faded; it has only grown stronger as we've sought the Lord and asked Him to shape our hearts and guide our steps. We truly feel that God has placed this calling on our lives, not just as a desire, but as a reflection of His love. Adoption, to us, is such a beautiful picture of the Gospel the way that God, in His grace and mercy, has adopted us into His family. Throughout this process, we have been incredibly blessed by the support surrounding us. Our friends, family, and church community have come alongside us in ways that have been both humbling and encouraging. Praying for us, supporting us, and sharing in the excitement of what God is doing. It's been such a reminder that we are not walking this road alone, but are held up by a community that loves deeply and faithfully. As we move forward, we are filled with hope and excitement to welcome a new baby into our home and into a community that is ready to love them deeply. More than anything, we pray our home will always be a place where God's love is known and felt.

Adoption has been on our hearts since the very beginning of our relationship.

Thank you so much for taking the time to get to know us and to read part of our story.

We don't take lightly the courage and love it takes to consider adoption, and we want you to know how deeply we respect and care for you as you walk through this journey.

If you were to choose us, we promise to love and care for your baby with all that we have. We would sacrificially pour into their life, always seeking what is best for them, and treasuring them as the unique and wonderful person God created them to be.

Our home would be a place of safety, joy, and unconditional love—where they are known, celebrated, and reminded every day of how deeply they are valued.

We would be truly honored to welcome you into our lives and our family. At the same time, we want you to feel peace in whatever decision you make. Please know that we are praying for you—that God would give you clarity, comfort, and strength every step of the way.

Thank you again for considering us. It would be such a blessing and privilege to be part of your child's life. We are praying for you and your precious child, and for wisdom and peace as you choose the family that is right for them.

Meghan & Brandon